Empathy Map Canvas:

An empathy map is a simple, easy-to-digest visual that captures knowledge about a user's behaviours and attitudes.

It is a useful tool to help teams better understand their users.

Creating an effective solution requires understanding the true problem and the person who is experiencing it. The exercise of creating the map helps participants consider things from the user's perspective along with his or her goals and challenges.

THINK & FEEL	SEE
“Will my complaint really be taken seriously?” “I’m already annoyed about the defective product.” “I hope this doesn’t turn into a long, bureaucratic process.” “Relief when he notices a clear status tracker.”	• A clean dashboard after login (“My Complaints”, “Submit Complaint”). • Step-by-step form with required / optional fields and file-upload prompts. • Real-time status badges: New → In Review → In Progress → Resolved. • Chat panel that activates once an agent is assigned. • Email/SMS notifications popping up while he waits.

HEAR	SAY & DO
• “Your complaint has been registered successfully.” (system) • Pings (“Sarah has replied to your message”). • Brand tone: polite, reassuring language about prompt resolution and transparent tracking. • Possibly background chatter from friends/family: “You’ll never get that fixed...”	• Creates an account; verifies email. • Describes the defect, uploads photos, double-checks the purchase date. • Refreshes the dashboard to see progress. • Exchanges messages with Sarah, clarifies details. • Leaves feedback once resolved.

PAINS	GAINS
• Frustration with defective product. • Fear of being ignored or stalled by canned responses. • Time/effort spent collecting proof (photos, receipts). • Anxiety over refund vs. replacement timelines.	• Centralized place to submit & track complaints—no phone queues. • Transparent progress updates reduce uncertainty. • Direct chat with an accountable agent. • Quick refund/replacement restores trust in the brand.
